Fire Resistance Rating

These storage cabinets carry the prestigious SP classification NT Fire 017 90 Paper which includes a one & half-hour fire test at 1850°F. The safe's certification is considered = to or > than the UL Class 350 – 1 ½ Hr. Fire resistance classification.

Storage Cabinet Purpose

Fire Fighter Storage Cabinets are used to protect information stored on paper and also limited types of computer media such as CDs, DVDs, flash drives, and memory cards. Storage cabinets are usually placed in offices, records rooms, or at an off-site location for archival storage. This storage cabinet is designed to be bolted to the floor.

Insulation

Phoenix's proprietary insulation is asbestos-free, and uses modern age chemistry principles to provide outstanding fire protection. Insulation also provides protection for the storage contents against magnetic interference.

Storage Cabinet Construction

Insulation is fully encased between an inner and outer wall, keeping it out of contact with the records, and out of the bolt work and locking mechanisms.

Door Handle

Attractive and sturdy, handle is easy to grip and turn.

Storage Cabinet Doors

Storage cabinet's outer door is made of welded steel and are insulated with our proprietary insulation. Each outer door interlocks with the cabinet body to make cabinet interior resistant to heat transfer using a labyrinth sealing system. Special water seal prevents water damage caused by fire hose spray or sprinklers.

Security Lock

Fire Fighter Storage Cabinets use a special 7-pin pick resistant dimple key lock to secure the cabinet.

Finish

Phoenix Fire Fighter Storage Cabinets are painted with an extremely durable water-based, air-dry, textured enamel paint finish.

Color

Phoenix Fire Fighter Storage Cabinets are available in a Putty color.

Product Warranty

All Phoenix products carry a three-year parts and labor warranty.
